MELANCHOLY AND FATAL ACCIDENT—CAVING IN OF A SEWER—ONE MAN KILLED AND FOUR WOUNDED.
 Yesterday morning about 8 o'clock, one of those unfortunate accidents which frequently occur through carelessness or ignorance, took place in Madison street, between Rutgers and Pike. At the above mentioned hour, while five men, named John Murray, Michael Murray, Timothy Mathers, Thomas McKee, and George Clark, were at work, excavating the street for the purpose of building a sewer, the ground on the east side caved in and completely buried those who were at work in the bottom of the pit. Those who were engaged elsewhere, went immediately to the scene, and in a short time to extricate those who were nearest the surface. Michael Murray was the first man taken out, and he was found to be dead. The others were taken out one by one, and were all found to be alive, but were very much bruised and cut by the planks falling on them. He was immediately taken to the New York Hospital, where he now lies in a critical condition.

Timothy Mathers and George Clark were then extricated, the former sustaining but a few slight bruises; but the latter did not fare quite so well, as he was hurt so badly that it was thought necessary to remove him to a dwelling house hard by.

But the most melancholy part of the accident yet remained to be told. As the ground caved in, the planks above persons, John Murray was found to be missing, and upon digging about three feet deeper into the earth, they discovered the dead body of the unfortunate man, who, on being raised to the level of the street, presented a shocking appearance, his head and face being bruised and black and blue, and his legs and arms broken. The deceased was taken to the New York Hospital, where he now lies in a critical condition.

Dr. E. B. Connerly was fortunately upon the spot and was able to render assistance to the three who were taken out alive, but the unfortunate man, who was taken out last, died before the arrival of the doctor, and was reinterred after some time.

Veteran Boston Militia.—The "Boston Regiment," as it is called—being a portion of the Massachusetts Volunteer Militia—is distinguished for its perfection in drill and discipline. Three companies of this regiment are particularly distinguished; of these we have been visited by two, and the third—the Boston Light Infantry—will arrive here this (Sunday) morning. This corps was formed in 1778, and has often numbered the distinguished men of Massachusetts in its ranks. At one time the corps languished and seemed in danger of dissolution; but we are glad to say that under its present commander, Ashley, it is as prosperous as ever, and perhaps better drilled. By the following order it will be seen that the Boston company will be in good hands.

City Politics.
CITY REPORTS MOVEMENT.
 We annex the address of the Reform Union, Vice appointed at Metropolitan Hall, at the great meeting of the 7th of March last. The city reformers are meeting with a spirit and energy which prove them to be in earnest. Indeed, this party (if party it may be called) seems to be the only one which exhibits any spirit. The old political parties, torn by feuds and dissensions, seem comparatively spiritless. The reformers expect to sweep the city in respect to all municipal affairs. Their organization is said to be the most thorough and comprehensive. Every ward is organizing and making nominations under the call of the Metropolitan Hall Committee. The committee is composed of about an equal number of prominent citizens of all political parties. This organization is said not only to embrace men of this description, but working men from every trade and occupation. One great object of the reformers has been to convince the mass of folk that they are more interested in an economical city government than any other class; that it is always in the power of capital to throw an undue portion of the burdens of taxation on labor. From the overwhelming vote in favor of the new charter, last June, and present indications, it would seem, that in this effort they have been successful. From their address, too, it appears they intend to make a selection of nominees for judicial stations from the candidates proposed by the political parties.

Mr. James McKee was the first man taken out, and he was found to be dead. The others were taken out one by one, and were all found to be alive, but were very much bruised and cut by the planks falling on them. He was immediately taken to the New York Hospital, where he now lies in a critical condition.
